FREE SAMPLE PAGES from the Multisensory Cursive Toolkit

You can get the complete packet below

Slanting Practice

Slanting practice:

Using a yellow crayon or a highlighter, draw the slant on top of these letters:

Handwriting Tip:

Your cursive will look better if you are able to write all your letters with a consistent slant.

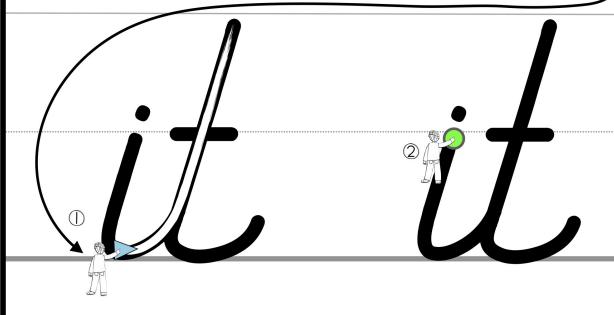

Starting at each go-dot, draw a row of slanting strokes for short & tall letters.

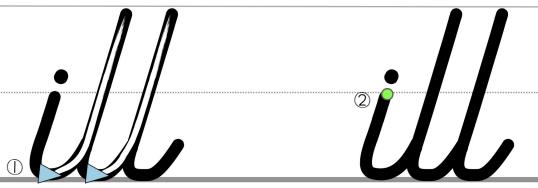

Practice the rule of starting at the  $\underline{top}$  and using a  $\underline{slant}$  to write the capital alphabet. QBCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ

Practice the Joining Stroke

Letters within a word are joined with a curving up stroke that starts at the the writing line and continues to the beginning of the next letter.

- ① Trace the joining strokes that connect letters.
- 2 Then, starting at the go-dot, trace the whole word, including the joining stroke.

Slant-Down Group Write these 3 Connecting letters Write 7 times Without picking up your pencil or stopping between letters, connect these letters. Do not dot "i" or cross "t" until you reach the end of each word. Trace Write Without picking up your pencil or stopping between letters, finish each word three times.

Flag-Start Capitals

Starting on the go-dots, finger trace these letters. Place your tracing finger on the #l go-dot. Trace (up and slant down) to form Flag-Starts D, P, and B. These letters are each made with one continuous line (without lifting your pencil).

Practice until, with your eyes closed, you can recall how the letter looks, the direction of movement, and the stroke of each letter.

Flag-Start Cursive Capitals

			four times. Rema	ı
Pp	Pp
	D D
Write each name two times in cursive.
Dan	Pam	Bree	Daisy	Paul	Bud
Finish one of the two sentences below. Write the entire sentence in cursive.  Bard broke when he e 					